A: If you have a non-networked CD recorder, you'll need something like this: Basically it is a way to transfer your audio and videos from a USB audio/video recorder and CD burner to your computer. If you have an networked CD recorder (like a CD-R/RW combo) you can get something like this: The above has a USB port, and it has a memory card slot, but no network capabilities. However, if you have a MAC, you can use a USB transfer kit to do the copying. Here is a place to buy one: It's called "My Tools USB Mass Storage Device" (don't forget to buy both USB ports with the kit). You can see some diagrams of what it looks like on this page: Q: Significance of each of the options to set the time limit of cURL (or how to set the time limit of cURL) For Example : curl -v -n And I can set different options according to each post on the website, -n, --post, -p f678ea9f9e
